PREFACE.

THE evidence which has been collected into this volume is mainly derived from the domestic accounts of certain Oxford and Cambridge colleges, from those of Eton College, and later on from those of Winchester. I have also used the collections of Mr. Lloyd, who transcribed the register of the Clerks of the Oxford Market, two University officials, who are still entrusted, by ancient charter, with the police of trade in the market of the city of Oxford. The following Oxford Colleges have supplied me with information:—New College, Magdalen, All Souls, Oriel, Corpus, and for one or two years, S. John's. The New College series is very much broken. The others are generally continuous, and up to the outbreak of the Civil War, when Oxford was besieged, the entries are fairly copious. After the surrender of the city, the account for the year is very slight and barren.

Two Cambridge Colleges have supplied me with abundant evidence. The accounts of King's College are, in one of the two regular forms, unbroken, except for one year (1619). In this year a third register, the Commons book, is extant, and supplies many details which would, but for this account, have been lost. The other set of accounts is that of S. John's, which under the judicious care of the Bursar, Mr. Scott, has been restored to excellent condition. The ordinary annual account of S. John's does not contain many particulars, but the series is unbroken. This College has also always purchased its own corn and baked its own bread, and the bakehouse accounts exist from the early years of the 17th century.

The Oxford Colleges as soon as possible took advantage of the Corn Rent Act of 1576, under which a third of the old reserved rent could be taken in kind, or interpreted in money at the maximum price of the rent day in the markets of Oxford, Cambridge, Winchester, and Windsor, for the act was made obligatory only in the case of the Universities and their Colleges, and the two ancient Schools¹. The immediate acceptance of the latter alternative of the Act was, I do not doubt, facilitated in Oxford by the large police powers which the University possessed over the city traders; for the clerks of the market generally supplied the Bursars of the various Colleges with the market prices of grain. But it does not appear that the subjection of the Cambridge burgesses was so complete, or that the municipal authorities of the town were so subordinated to those of the University as those of the citizens of Oxford were, whose Mayor, within living memory, was constrained, under a heavy penalty, to make oath of obedience to the Vice-Chancellor of the University.

The Oxford corn rents are generally uniform, whatever College collects them. But there are occasions on which the College takes the maximum for itself, and the return differs slightly from that of the official record. In the main the rent days are twice a year, at Michaelmas and

Lady Day. For some time however New College added a third rent day and a third return at Midsummer. The All Souls rents too differ from the ordinary return. This College, though its accounts do not specify the days on which rent was due, evidently adopted two audit days of its own. They were probably in November and May, and the All Souls corn rents give very useful information from Oxford, as to the state of the market in what was the most critical month of the year, when the supplies of the previous harvest were running low, and people were beginning to speculate on the prospects of the next crop.

Long before the Act of 1576 was passed, it was the practice of King's College and Eton to meet the difficulty of a fixed money rent, while prices were generally rising, by calling on their tenants to pay part of their rents in kind, the form being to supply wheat, malt, and sheep at fixed and ancient prices, as 6*s.* 8*d.* a quarter for wheat, 4*s.* for malt, and 2*s.* for a sheep, when the market prices of these necessaries were double these rates or more. The main difficulty in this expedient was that of getting any security that the articles supplied should be up to quality, and there are occasional hints in the bursar's account that the difficulty was real and was felt. In course of time, the Cambridge Colleges and Eton adopted the system of corn rents interpreted in money, in lieu of these produce rents, and the custom of the two Universities and Eton became, except in one important particular, identical. Occasionally too, the Oxford and Cambridge Colleges, when the produce of a particular locality was exceptionally good or convenient, stipulated that the corporation should be supplied from the locality with grain of some kind, but at market prices. Thus King's College took oats and peas from Biggin, one of their manors, New College beans from two of their estates in Bucks. These arrangements have been very fortunate for my researches. I should have had a very poor show of the prices of beans and peas but for these contracts, and it took no little pains to discover these prices, even when I found out what the practice was.

The prices at which the corn rents are estimated, are the highest of the market on the rent day. To what extent the tenants, knowing this, could prevent or moderate what they might conceive to be an over high price, is a difficult thing to determine. But it was, I think, in view of this contingency that the Cambridge Colleges, and later on Winchester, had far more numerous returns of corn rents than the six-monthly Oxford estimate. At King's College there are eleven such days, going nearly over the year, though it is rarely the case that all the tenants are punctual to date. When they are behindhand, their liabilities go into the arrears, and it becomes impossible to disintegrate them. These corn rents extend from Michaelmas to the end of August, and so cover the whole agricultural year. At S. John's the corn rents are valued six times a year, from Sept. 29 to Aug. 1. At Eton, the College began with the two days, Michaelmas and Lady Day, but in course of time had seven rent days, from Michaelmas to Midsummer. At Winchester the regular rent days were eight in the year. In some estates belonging to this College, oats formed a corn rent. I cannot but conclude that in this distribution of their corn rents, the Colleges intended to obviate a combination of farmers against them.

From the year 1607, S. John's College, Cambridge, begins to purchase corn for the bakehouse, and from this date the account is unbroken. From the contrast between the price at which they valued the corn in their rent, and the price paid for purchases destined for their own consumption, a very instructive inference can be drawn as to the difference between the best price, and the consumer's price. Similar facts are derivable, though not so uninterruptedly, from the Eton and New College purchases. The facts have been compared in the fifth volume. It is unnecessary perhaps to observe that wheat and malt were the most important articles of consumption at this time, and that the register of other kinds of grain is of far less importance.

The Winchester accounts are continuous as far as they exist. But with the exception of two fragmentary books of household expenses drawn up by the manciple, the existing accounts of this ancient and wealthy corporation begin with the Parliamentary War, the previous record of nearly three centuries having disappeared. The importance of these which survive makes one the more regret the absence of those which are apparently lost.

But though the archives of these corporations have supplied me with large and authoritative facts, I have been able to make use of other records. Among these are the Shuttleworth accounts, which have been printed, and those of William Howard, the Belted Will of Border legends. The former I have used freely, the latter with hesitation, as I soon became suspicious of careless editing. But by far the largest part of my additional information comes from the British Museum. Such archives are the household books of Lords North, Pembroke, and Spencer, the accounts of the Archers of Theydon Gernon, of the Carylls at Harting, Sussex, of D'Ewes and Dering, and a number of others which are less continuous or less copious, as Master's accounts of Yotes Court, and those of the Rockingham young lady, who gives information as to how she lays out her allowance on her dress. At the end of the period I have used the voluminous accounts of Johnson, the Deptford shipbuilder, and have gleaned some information from the records of county antiquarian societies.

Still more important are the facts given for the twelve years at the end of this period, during which Houghton published his Collections. I have printed all Houghton's facts separately, not because I distrust them, for I have been able to test them by Cambridge and Oxford prices, (the former being continuously one of Houghton's centres, the latter only interrupted for a time,) but in order that I might the more conveniently contrast his facts with my collections. I hope that when I grapple with the last two volumes of my work, I may find information equally copious and accurate with that given by the city apothecary and fellow of the Royal society.

Towards the end of the period, I have been able to use certain MSS. in the Bodleian Library, contained in the Tanner and (especially) in the Rawlinson Collections. Among those which the latter antiquary procured, are some important accounts of Pepys and his brother, some papers illustrating the expenditure of the city of London, and in particular of the charges incurred, with unfortunately too few particulars, in the rebuilding of the city churches after the great fire, and of the repairs commenced at Westminster Abbey at the end of the seventeenth century, under the superintendence of Wren, a MS. which should be consulted, if, as is rumoured, extensive structural repairs are now required in that building. I have good reason to know how useful it is for the modern architect to study evidence, if it be forthcoming, on ancient buildings, from the value of Needham's account to the Committee appointed to confer and report on Mr. Pearson's plans for the repair of the western side of Westminster Hall. I procured the book for them from the Bodleian Library.

I must again remind my reader that my year is that of agriculture, from September to September. It has been most unfortunate that writers on corn prices have invariably taken the civil year, from January to January. A moment's reflection will show that such a system mixes up two harvests together, and utterly neutralises the facts. Let me refer to one year in illustration of what I mean. The year 1661-62 had the worst harvest of the whole period. But the year 1662-63 had a fairly good crop. Now to take six or seven months of a very bad crop, and to mingle them with the rest of the year when the crop was almost abundant, is to wilfully destroy the worth of one's inference. Even such able men as Tooke and Newmarch were the victims of this error of method.

The system which I have adopted, necessary in the case of corn, has certain, but I hope trivial, inconveniences in the case of other products. I say trivial, because in the times before us, there was a far closer relation between dear and cheap years of food, and cheap or dear years of other produce. When food was stinted, or the larger part of a limited income was appropriated to the purchase of food, the demand for other commodities fell, and the price shrank. But I have attempted to point out in the fifth volume, what are the particular corrections which my general method involves. Corrections, perhaps more difficult, have to be made by those who study to any purpose the theory of prices, when the civil year is taken.

The growing wealth of certain classes in England is exhibited in the larger amount of detail to be found in the prices of linen and similar fabrics, and in woollen and silk goods. Here the student will find stuffs which are not easy to interpret and identify, for of all articles none have a more transient meaning than the names of clothing once in fashion. In these matters I have adhered to the spelling of my original authorities.

My reader will regret with me that important articles are exhibited with frequent gaps of years. But when the rise in prices was almost completely effected, just before the Civil War, it is a remarkable fact, that in many particulars they remained almost stationary for more than a century. It has often happened, as in my earlier volumes, that I have discovered a mass of new evidence, which has not in any material manner modified the averages which I previously drew. For example, in my fourth volume, I gathered from very scanty materials an average of oatmeal, after the middle of the sixteenth century. I subsequently discovered a continuous price of this article for eight years (1555-62), and the discovery made no serious difference to the inference. I have had a similar experience in the present volume.

I may again call attention to the fact that what I have collected in these volumes, as in those which have preceded them, is not only authentic, but new. All the information hitherto published on 16th and 17th century prices, is not equal to what I have printed here, for any one year out of the hundred and twenty. Besides it is in every case a contemporaneous record of business done, or in Houghton's entries, of prices current under dates. Most of the information, it is true, is from Southern, Midland, and Eastern England. But the averages derived from Houghton's twelve years, in which the North is sufficiently represented, are sufficient for the purpose of suggesting the difference, if any, between Southern and Northern prices.

As usual, I have appended certain documents to my facts. In the first place, on the important subject of quarter sessions assessments of wages, the sole and sufficient cause of the prolonged degradation, beggary, and improvidence of English working men, I have been able to give eleven illustrations, extending over nearly a hundred years. The documents have in part been printed in Sir Frederic Eden's History of the Poor. I have transcribed them from his originals, and have discovered three others.

I have also been able to discover the record of a rate levied at a penny an acre on the owners and occupiers of Tandridge, Surrey, in the year 1600. The document is interesting, because it illustrates the system of relieving the poor and of making assessments before the enactment of Elizabeth's last poor law, and because it is a graduated rate, in which a limit is put on the taxation of the poorer occupiers and owners. The document is further instructive, because it shows how land was distributed in a single parish, the whole acreage it appears being in particular ownership or occupation. It is noteworthy too that the county was taxed for the prison rate. The reader will also observe that the district was liable to composition in lieu of purveyance and pressing. Most of the assessors sign with a mark.

Another document illustrates the precautions taken by an Oxford College against the plague of 1603. The regulations are copied from the ledger book of Merton College. The dates with which the document is headed are curious, and, as far as I know the ledger book of Merton, are unique.

The acts of the City of London Council in 1627 and 1628 are important. They illustrate the manner in which Charles raised money, the debts which his father left him, and, as I conclude, the manner in which the Companies collected their Irish estates.

I have printed next, a contemporaneous or nearly contemporaneous account of ship money in the several counties. The notes annexed to them are from the original. It may be compared with another record of the first year of the impost printed in Vol. V, p. 104.

The valuation of the Oxford Colleges which follows is one which is frequently found in the seventeenth century, and generally for the relief of the poor, to which the Colleges contributed, I presume, on their area in the city. They contrived at last to evade this duty, and up to recent memory, while they were probably the principal causes of pauperism, from the hangers on of these institutions, escaped all contribution to the charge. This document, which is not dated, but belongs probably to the year 1667, when one of the Canterbury parishes (p. 668) made a large collection for the Vaudois, is a curious illustration of how these corporations taxed themselves, in this case, on behalf of the oppressed and persecuted Vaudois. One would have been glad to learn how the money was transmitted and distributed.

The next are two documents which give an account of the population of London in 1631, and of the christenings and deaths within the bills of mortality during the seventeenth century and a little later. They are extracted from a work published by Corbyn Morris in 1751, which reprints the collections of Captain Graunt, one of the first fellows of the Royal Society, who wrote shortly after the Restoration. It may be interesting to note, that the Bridge without burgesses or freemen of the city who lived south of the Thames, had not then apparently lost their franchise for their alderman. Of course the Bridge without ward is the ancient borough of Southwark. With every deduction made, the table of christenings and births gives a frightful picture of the unhealthiness of London.

The next is a return made to Parliament in Nov. 1642, of the clear annual value of the several bishoprics and deaneries in England. The suppression of these offices was already in the air, and was not long delayed. I have printed this document in order to illustrate the condition of tithe and rent at about the middle of the seventeenth century, with the subsequent development of both, for I presume that the endowments of bishops and deans, as far as the extent of the lands and tithes impropriated to these functionaries goes, were not at all changed, or but little changed from the time before me till the establishment of the Ecclesiastical Commission and the revision of the salaries then received.

Next follow three rentals. The first is copied from the original among the Pepys papers in the Rawlinson (A) Collection, the second and third I owe to the kindness of Lord Leicester and Lord John Manners. I have made extracts from a manuscript volume lent me by the former nobleman, with a view of illustrating the progress of rents in the seventeenth century, and the beginning of the eighteenth. The record begins with the retirement of the great Chief Justice, and concludes with a recital of rents in 1706. The last column is not to be taken as an accurate statement of value, for it is of rents actually received, the liabilities not paid being put in another column in red ink. The Duke of Rutland's steward sent me, at the instance of Lord John Manners, an account of the Belvoir rental before and after 1692, with some notes on the character of the soil in each parish.

I had intended to add some information as to the progress of fines on Collegiate estates, having found in the Bodleian Library an account of those at King's College, Cambridge, for the greater part of the seventeenth century, and having been kindly furnished with the Warden's fine book at New College for the second half of that century, and the greater part of the eighteenth. But I do not think that my reader would find it easy to unravel the whole circumstances which determined fines on beneficial leases, or derive any clear information on the progress of rent from them.

I have finally added to these documents three price lists of stock, the first of the Bank of England, which is reprinted from my work on the first nine years of the Bank, the second and third the prices of the old and new East India Companies. These figures are evidence as to the fortunes and the prospects (at the time) of these historical undertakings.

My reader will I trust find some facts in the notes (pp. 661-670), which will throw light on the political and social history of the time, especially on subjects which are apt to be curiously evanescent. Thus, when I was last at Glasgow I enquired in vain as to memories of the great fire, to which two Oxford Colleges contributed for the time so handsomely in 1653 and 1654.

Another note of interest is the money paid by Eton College in 1677 for the recovery of some of their savings, which had been plundered by Charles five years before, when he shut up the Exchequer, and stole the Bankers' money.

Had I foreseen the labour, the cost, and the anxiety which have been involved in the collection of the materials for these six volumes, when I began my researches a quarter of a century ago, I should never have undertaken this work. I am now, if I have health, within measureable distance of its completion, for the next two volumes will bring me to the year at which I conclude this history of Agriculture and Prices. I have hitherto been able, in the midst of a thousand disappointments and discouragements, to continue the sustained effort of this vast investigation, in which I have been the solitary workman. But I am consoled by the knowledge that in the facts which I have collected and marshalled lies the true social history of the English people, the demonstration of many economical truths, and the refutation of many economical fallacies, which have passed and are passing for truths.

TABLES OF PRICES.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

GRAIN.

In the following tables of the price of Grain, the evidence of each year is ranged under five heads: I. Wheat; II. Barley and Malt; III. Oats and Oatmeal; IV. Rye; V. Beans and Peas. Malt and Peas are designated by the letters M. and P. When these letters are absent, the entry will be understood to be of Barley or Beans as the case may be.

As in the former volumes, the year is from Michaelmas to Michaelmas, i. e. for example, from Sept. 29, 1583 to Sept. 29, 1584. The greater part of the period therefore as given in these tables is of the later year. This course, as I have already stated, was adopted in order to exhibit the harvest. The same practice is followed with all other articles.

The evidence taken from the four statutory towns, 18 Eliz. cap. 26, Oxford, Cambridge, Winchester, and Windsor, is the highest price in the market on the day for which the price is given for Wheat and Malt. Hence the prices are of the best quality only. It is important therefore that note should be taken of such entries as are not made under this condition. It will be found that in all the localities which were under the Statute, other purchases were made for consumption, at very different rates from the highest of the market. This was regularly done at Cambridge (St. John's College) for the bakehouse, and at Eton and Winchester for their establishments. But the St. John's bakehouse accounts do not begin till 1607, the earlier records being lost, and those of Eton are supplied from entries at factitious prices.

Oxford adopts the Act of 1576 in 1582. But at Cambridge and Eton there is considerable delay in putting it into execution. King's College long clings to the older practice of receiving rents in kind, and the accounts of this corporation are, for many years, of occasional purchase only. The first entry of corn rents at St. John's is in 1590. Eton begins in 1594. The earlier corn rents of Winchester have not yet been discovered, the earliest at present forthcoming is that of 1658, though the record of its purchases dates from 1644. It is to be hoped that they will be recovered.

The Oxford corn rents are of two days in the year, Michaelmas and Lady Day. New College sometimes gives Midsummer besides. All Souls too gives corn rents on its own rent days, but does not define them.

At Cambridge, Winchester, and Eton the corn rent days are more numerous. At King's College they are ten or more, extending over the whole year. At St. John's College they are invariably six. At Eton they are for a long time six and then sink to two only. At Winchester they are seven. These accounts are therefore more suggestive of market variations than those of Oxford are.

At the end of these tables I have printed the quarterly variations of corn prices given by Houghton in his Collections for husbandry and trade. I have deemed it best to keep them separate, though I see no reason to doubt their accuracy. I shall comment on them hereafter.

The quarter is the ordinary one of eight bushels and sixty-four gallons. There is an anomalous measure in Gawthorp, Lancashire, of windles, mets, pecks, and occasionally eightyndalls. Similarly in the Howard accounts, the bushel is the equivalent as it seems of the East Anglian comb. It appears that six mets equal a quarter. The load is also found in the south of England.

It is supposed that the Windsor quarter was of nine bushels. But I am informed by the officials of the Eton treasury that their quarter was always that of Winchester. The Bursar of Winchester tells me that in reckoning the Winchester rents, the tradition has been to add a sixteenth to the quantity.

The reader will find for some time entries of grudgins. At first these are dearer than wheat; in course of time they fall below it in price, and then disappear. I conclude that there was a change in the quality of this article.

Wheat meal is measured generally by the corn from which it is produced, while oatmeal is measured by quantity not by origin.

Oats, as previously, vary greatly in value. At Winchester some corn rents were in oats.

The Oxford wheat and malt prices are generally those of the Clerks of the Market. Sometimes they are the record of the assise of bread. The entries from Portsmouth are of the latter character.

In the Cambridge accounts, such as have no special name prefixed to them are those of King's College.

The prices marked 'Tanner' are taken from a 17th century manuscript in the Bodleian Library. They are plainly Cambridge prices. Those marked Ll. are from Mr. Lloyd's collections, and are of Oxford prices.

HOUGHTON'S CORN PRICES.

The following prices are collected from Houghton's weekly paper. The publication commenced with March, 1692, and ended with September in the same year, being discontinued for three months, and was resumed at the beginning of the year 1693. Thenceforward it is continued without a break till September 16, 1703.

I have designated the quarters of the year for which prices are given from the different localities as 1st, 2nd, &c. In the original the prices of the different kinds of grain are given weekly. In the transcript, as long as there is no change in the price, no new entry is made. For example, under the year 1693-4, there is no change in the price of wheat at Andover till the end of the fourth quarter. But at Kingston-on-Thames there are ten variations in the first quarter, nine in the second, thirteen in the third, and thirteen in the fourth. The Thames was extensively used at very cheap rates for the conveyance of goods.

Houghton gives the price of Wheat, Barley, Malt, Oats, Rye, Beans, Grey Peas, and White Peas. These are given in order under each year.

From some of the markets Houghton gets regular returns. But in others, his correspondents are negligent and weary and the locality is struck out. I am disposed to think that the returns to his circular were nearly always more numerous than appear here, and that he chose those localities only which were of interest.

HOPS.

IN the following register of the prices of hops, I have been able to supply a series which, except for one year, is unbroken. The evidence chiefly comes from Cambridge (King's College), Eton, and, later on, Winchester. During the last twelve years Houghton gives prices. The Oxford Colleges supply but little information, as they generally bought their beer from the common brewer. During the last decade, however, New College begins to brew for itself, and purchases brewing vessels, very costly matters, and therefore buys hops.

Hops are bought by the pound and hundred-weight (112 lbs. c). The fluctuations in the price of this article are so extraordinary, that I suspect that, especially in years when the price was rising, it was thought expedient to lay in an exceptionally large supply if the purchaser could afford it. Thus in 1641 King's College buys the large amount of 14 cwts., and thereupon makes no purchase in 1642, while unluckily the Eton accounts for 1641 and 1642 are lost. Sometimes an account ordinarily regular gives no quantities, and I cannot venture on drawing an inference from what appears to be an average consumption. This is especially the case at Winchester.

Sometimes the account distinguishes between English and Flemish hops. The latter are generally far cheaper, though not invariably so. The foreign article was I believe as a rule, bought at Stourbridge fair, the accounts frequently stating this. The Eton hops, however, were probably bought in London, and brought in barges to the College. This corporation tried to grow hops for its own consumption, and the spot which they laid out for the purpose is still called the hop-garden. The experiment was however a total failure.

The Winchester hops probably came from North-east Hampshire, and the parts of Surrey adjoining, which early obtained, and still I believe retain, a reputation for the best produce of this capricious plant. I believe however that many places which have now abandoned the cultivation of hops, have in times past tried to get a crop of it, and had to give it up in despair. It is possible too that the tithe of this produce may have discouraged agriculturists.

I have thought it best to keep the large purchases by cwts., and to reduce pounds to cwts. in the case of Winchester, where the consumption was large.

Apart from the variations of successive years, there is sometimes an enormous difference in the price of the article in the same year, at different places, or even in the same place.

The mark † signifies that the cost of the carriage is in the price.

HAY AND STRAW.

In the following register of Hay and Straw prices, entries which are not otherwise designated are those of Hay. Straw as before is marked with the letter S. When the kind of straw is mentioned, as in 1591, note is taken.

The measure is generally the load or bigata, i. e. the ton of new, and the 19½ cwt. of old hay. But hay is also sold by the hundred-weight (c), the quarter or tod, and the 1000 lb. weight (m). It has been found by the ton, and later by the stack and truss.

There are a few entries of grass by the acre.

Houghton's prices are given at the end.

A general rise last week of Nov.
Another rise third week of June.

MINOR PRODUCTS.

THE annexed short table gives an account of certain agricultural products, which could not be conveniently comprised under any other head. Unless another measure is given for seeds, the quantity taken is the quarter. For a few years Houghton gives prices of seeds. These will be found at the end of the list.

The entries of mustard from Oxford, almost continuous from 1593 to 1641, are of ground mustard.

The first entry of potatoes, in 1590, is of some which were purchased for Elizabeth's own table. The price is enormous, and indicates how rare the article was. There is another entry under 1632. It does not appear that the cultivation of this plant became general till long into the eighteenth century.

The word Skegg is a midland term for the bullace or wild plum. The artichokes are not of course the tubers, but the large immature flower known also by this name.

Some entries which have been left in the list of corn prices will be commented on in connection with this table.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

STOCK.

CATTLE AND BEEF, HORSES, SHEEP AND MUTTON, PIGS, BOARS AND PORK, POULTRY AND GAME.

As in the former volumes, the articles priced in this table are ranged under five heads: Cattle, &c.; Horses; Sheep, &c.; Pigs, &c.; Poultry.

But the record of the price of live animals used for food becomes scanty and irregular as time goes on, and when corporations and private individuals begin to deal direct with the butcher. It is frequently the case too, that when the purchase is stated to be made of ox or sheep, we must understand the carcass only, else the price of the wool or the fell and the hide would appear as a liability of the bursar or steward in the accounts. Thus for example, Eton buys sheep up to 1601, cattle up to 1618 in bulk, and the bursars of the College account for the wool, or woolfells, and the hides which represent the year's consumption. But after this date, though cattle and sheep are entered, it must be understood that the animal termed means the dressed carcass, though at Eton the offal was sold, and the price received entered. Still there are enough oxen and sheep entered for all purposes of inference.

In London and its vicinity a custom grew up of selling meat by the stone of 8 lbs., the other six pounds being accounted for in the offal. But at Cambridge, which supplies me (from King's College) with an unbroken register of beef prices for each quarter of the year, the stone is 14 lbs. Meat is also sold by the pound, as is also suet.

Various names are given to cattle. Where they are called oxen I have generally, as before, omitted any descriptive name. In the Winchester accounts the weight of the beef consumed in the year is given in pounds, and the number of oxen supplying it, up to 1688. It will therefore be found easy to estimate the size to which oxen were kept during the period. The cattle purchased for consumption at Eton were obtained frequently at very remote markets, and the cost of driving them to the College is no inconsiderable item in the expense. But after the civil war this College appears generally to discontinue beef. The Oxford accounts give very few entries, not I believe because beef was not consumed, but because a bargain was made with the manciple, and the charges are not given in detail.

Sheep are purchased by the head or carcase to a much later date. At Oxford, Eton and Winchester the weight of the sheep is generally given. But at Eton a peculiar custom arose of purchasing a 'ram' at election time, the weight of the animal being generally given. It is said that the boys used to hunt the animal in the playground before it was handed over to the butcher. The first entry which I have found of this purchase in the Eton accounts is in 1668, when two were bought. These 'rams' were generally of far larger weight than the ordinary sheep.

The accounts which I have consulted contain but few notices of pigs. But I have found prices of boars and brawns for most of the 120 years. Pork does not appear to have been a regular article of diet with these academical corporations.

The greater part of the information about horses is derived from the domestic accounts of the corporations, and is generally of saddle horses purchased for the heads and bursars of the colleges. But several years ago I purchased an account book of some Essex horse-dealer, the name and abode of the original owner not being given, in which the business transactions of the dealer are given between 1617 and 1651. Prices of horses fail me for only five years.

In some years there is abundant evidence of the price of poultry and game. In others it is altogether wanting. The fact is that owing to my records being almost entirely of rentals and consumption, and the accounts for the latter being far less numerous and continuous than those of the former, I am constantly without information, owing to the disappearance of the account books in which details of consumption are given. Had the Commons' books of King's College, Cambridge, been preserved as the Mundum and Particular books have been, I should have had this information in plenty. As it is, enough is recorded to exhibit what prices ordinarily were, and how they regularly rose from the beginning to the conclusion of the period.

The entries under the first head at Cambridge are beef by the stone (14 lbs.).

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF AGRICULTURAL PRODUCE.

BUTTER, CHEESE, & EGGS.

MOST of the information contained under this heading has been gathered from a few sources, the principal being Oxford, Cambridge, and Winchester; in Oxford almost exclusively from New College, in Cambridge from King's College only. The Eton accounts, though on the whole in excellent condition and nearly perfect, are silent on the detailed consumption of these articles. The register of articles, especially of extras, consumed by these corporations, was given in a special volume, which, having had an ephemeral interest only, has generally been lost.

In King's College, Cambridge, this is the Commons' book, of which only a few in comparison with the annual bursar's account survive. They were engrossed however as neatly and carefully as the other accounts, and when, more than a century ago, the accounts of this corporation were repaired, bound, and put in a safe place, such of these archives as still existed were, I conceive, treated with the same care.

At Winchester, all the early accounts of which have strangely disappeared, the general account of expenditure gives a summary of certain articles consumed in the School and College, while there exist others, plainly written by the cook or manciple, in which some details of the charges incurred on behalf of the Warden and Fellows are recorded.

At New College, Oxford, the entries are made in the ordinary bursar's account, which at the beginning of the seventeenth century takes the form of a paper book. But nothing is found in them till at the beginning of the siege of Oxford in 1643-4, when during these years the College lays in provisions (butter and cheese) against the event. In 1676 and onwards, a custom commences in this corporation of purchasing cheese for the bursar's table or office, and continues during all the years for which the annual record is now in existence.

Besides these three sources of more or less continuous information, there exist in the MS. department of the British Museum accounts of Lord North, of Lord Spencer, and of Lord Pembroke, designated here under Kirtling, Wormleighton, and Worksop. The Shuttleworth accounts of Gawthorp have supplied a few entries, and also those of Theydon Gernon, Harting (the seat of the Caryls), and Mendham. For six years (1633-38) the private account book of D'Ewes has contributed. London is also represented from time to time throughout the period.

A few prices have been added from Houghton.

CANDLES AND TALLOW.

Candles are generally sold by the dozen pounds. But other measures are found, the hundred (c) at Cambridge, this quantity containing 120 lbs. or ten dozen. This measure is also used at Kirtling. They are bought by the stone at Kirkby Stephen, and by the hundredweight. On one occasion the dozen is said to contain 13 lbs.

Candles are distinguished as white lights, wick and cotton, the first and last being dearer than wick, and on one occasion as small and great. Wicks, I conclude, are rushlights. Once they are called Dutch lights.

Tallow is purchased by the hundredweight, the stone and the pound. In the navy purchases tallow is used for caulking, but when bought for domestic purchases it is used for the home manufacture of candles. Thus in one year, 1645, Winchester College buys no tallow, but 127 dozen of candles.

Tallow is sometimes called hard, and is I presume beef fat.

Houghton's prices of candles in London and tallow are annexed.

WOOL, HIDES, AND LEATHER.

VERY little information has been procured as to these articles. But for some years Eton purchased sheep and cattle largely, dressed them on the spot, and sold the wool and hides. As information on the price of wool is exceedingly scanty in my last two volumes, I have thought it well to insert the entries which I have found between 1566 and 1583.

Houghton gives wool prices during the twelve years of his register.

BARK.

A FEW entries of the price of Bark for tanning have been discovered. They are nearly all from Eton, and designate sales from the College woods. A few are from New College, Oxford. The price varies greatly. This product is sold to the tanners by the load and the yard. The load appears to have contained 55 yds. at Eton, 42 at Oxford. Entries with no name of the place are from Eton.

FUEL.

THE principal kinds of fuel discovered in the accounts are charcoal, sea-coal, and wood. Sedge and turves are burnt in Cambridgeshire. Charcoal is universally in request.

As might be expected, sea-coal is used in places which had easy access for the Newcastle colliers, and inland coal is also worked. Thus the use of sea-coal is continuous at Cambridge, which got its supplies from King's Lynn up the river. At Oxford sea-coal is not found till 1657. The river was not navigable by barges between Burcot pier, near Dorchester, and Oxford, though it could be used from Oxford further up. Several Acts of Parliament were passed for the purpose of making this part of the river navigable, as the haulage of cheap goods by land raised them to a prohibitive price. Of inland coal we find Bolsover, Cutthorpe, Cannel, Bedworth, and Wedgebury.

Charcoal is generally bought by the quarter, the sack, and the load. Sea-coal by the chaldron.

Wood is of various kinds, tall wood, billets, faggots, firewood, brown wood, furze faggots, these last being generally used for heating ovens.

Turf, generally purchased at Cambridge by the thousand (m), is described as Ramsey, Bottisham, Botsome, Burwell, &c.

Houghton's prices, appended as usual, give a few prices of faggots in London, and regular quotations of sea-coal by the chaldron.

PRICES OF FISH.

A fish diet was not so common, nor were the marketable kinds of fish so numerous in the period before me as they had been in previous centuries. I find, however, herrings, salt cod, ling, salmon, and sturgeon, fresh-water fish, and fresh salt-water fish, oysters, and other shell fish. At Winchester the consumption of oysters is very great. Towards the latter end of the period ling and haberdens appear to be the only articles regularly bought. By far the largest amount of information is derived from King's College, Cambridge.

SALT.

UNLESS otherwise designated, the prices given of this article are by quarters and bushels. It is also bought by the met at Gawthorp and by the crannock. It is occasionally sold by the load, by the sack of four bushels, and by the hundredweight or wey, and barrel.

It is called white, brown, black, and grey, bay, and fine. Once or twice we find wych salt, which does not necessarily mean refined rock salt, for wych is the old English word for any saltern. Salt stones were known and purchased for dovecots, often at what seems a high price.

FOREIGN PRODUCE.

WINE.

I HAVE generally discovered some entry of wine during all the years comprised in this period, but unfortunately the scribe of many accounts gets into a confirmed habit of putting down the price of wine and other purchases of foreign produce in a lump sum.

Wine is of various kinds—claret, gascony, sack, muscadine or muscadell, white, Rhenish, malmsey, bastard, canary, Malaga, Bacharac, Aubryan, sherry, tent, Cawos, white and red port, and Palm wine. I also find aquavita and brandy. In course of time, wine is bought by the bottle and the dozen, but bottles are expensive.

Wine is generally bought by the gallon, and at Eton from the inn-keeper (of the Christopher) who keeps it for sale on draught. But it is occasionally purchased in bulk, by the tun, the hogshead, the tierce, and the rundlet, a small vessel of varying size, but generally between six and seven gallons in quantity.

The quantity in the table is the gallon, unless another measure is specified.

SPICES AND FRUITS.

THE information on this subject is very broken. The principal source from which particulars are derived from the earlier period are the Commons books of King's College, Cambridge. The corporations purchase considerable quantities of spice and foreign fruit yearly, but the cost is generally stated in the aggregate without particulars.

Towards the conclusion of the period, the reader will find prices of tobacco. It was cultivated in England, though often prohibited. Olives and capers are found occasionally and also drugs.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF MATERIALS.

IRON, IRONWORK, & NAILS.

THE following pages give such entries of these articles as have been found in the accounts. Entries of these materials become scarcer as time goes on. The purchaser procures iron goods from the dealer without recording particulars of weight, or even contents himself by writing down the gross sum of the ironmonger's or smith's bill. But I believe that sufficient evidence will be found of the price of iron and ironwork, in order to draw our inference as to the cost of these necessary articles.

In the earlier part of the period the practice of buying iron by the mass to be fashioned by the smith out of the store still lingers. The latest entry of such purchases is in 1630, when navy stores are obtained in this manner. On private estates the custom lasts longest at Gawthorp in Lancashire.

The accounts of such iron distinguish Spanish iron and Forest iron, by which latter I conclude Sussex produce is intended. Even in this condition it has been wrought into bars.

But by far the largest amount of entries is of iron worked into the final shape for which it was purposed.

Nails are designated as lath nails, and other kinds. Here again the evidence and the kinds are designated with some fulness at first. In course of time they are included in the builder's or carpenter's bill, and the head practically ceases to be instructive, though small purchases for mending are occasionally made.

METALS.

THE entries in this table comprise lead, pewter vessels, solder, copper and brass vessels, metal and bell-metal, silver plate, the latter giving indirectly the price of the silversmith's labour. There are a few entries of organ-pipe metal. On one or two occasions the price of gold is given, either as coin or in exchange for silver.

Lead is sold by the pound, the cwt., and the fother. On one occasion, 1589, it is bought by an ancient measure, the webb, which seems to have been more than a hundredweight. I have found this measure before at Stamford in 1513, vol. iii. p. 376. Entries with no prefix are those of lead.

Pewter is generally of wrought vessels. But sometimes entries are to be found of old metal, or of the difference between new and worn pewter.

A few of Houghton's prices are appended to the others.

GLASS.

A FEW entries of the price of glass, plain and coloured, have been found. It is generally bought by the square foot. By this time glass is manufactured in England. Normandy glass is also found, and in the latter part of the period what is called Carcell glass. Since 1611-1612, King's College buys what the accounts call holes. Quarrels in the course of the century are almost invariably sold at 1d. each. There are the diamond-shaped panes once so common. Occasionally glass is bought leaded for setting up. The price of glass scarcely changes.

STONE.

STONE of various kinds is bought for building, paving, and ornamentation. It is bought by the load, the ton, and the foot, and in the case of pebbles, largely used for pitching courts and footpaths, by the bushel. Among the various kinds, I find freestone, rag, paving rag, Burwell, Burford, hard, wall, flat, ashlar, pitching, wrought rag, window, Welden, scavelled, ruffe, Ketton, fire stone, the same I presume as the lapides apyroti at the same locality, Winchester.

I also find white and black marble, black Brabant marble, and Purbeck, the latter chiefly at Winchester.

Stone is occasionally found manufactured, as a half pace to a chimney, stone steps, doubles and crests. The object is sometimes indicated, as for the oven.

Together with such prices of stone as have been found, I have included the few millstones of which the price has been discovered. Of these two sets, both purchased by the city of Oxford for its mill, are of the costly kind which were frequently discovered in the earlier time. The others are generally inferior or common articles, not used as a rule, I believe, for grinding flour, but for bruising malt.

LIME.

LIME is bought by the quarter and its subdivisions, by the load and by the chaldron. Entries in the following pages which do not designate the measure must be understood to be by the quarter. The load and the chaldron appear to be identical and to contain, as we are told in one place, thirty-two bushels. But I have found it to represent five quarters or forty bushels, and three and a half quarters or twenty-eight bushels. Once at Winchester the load is said to be forty-nine bushels. I have also found the horse load, the met, the sack and the hundred, the last in London.

Purchases of lime become less common as time passes on, and contracts for building are made directly with traders. Some corporations, however, keep up the practice of buying in bulk for their buildings. The price of lime of course varies considerably as the locality is near to or distant from the kiln. In the Oxford accounts Brill lime is occasionally quoted. As the price indicates, it is of very superior quality.

LATHS.

SOME entries of laths have been found. These are distinguished, as in previous periods, as sap and hart. They are bought by the hundred, the bunch, the bundle, and the load. Generally the bunch or bundle appears to have contained a hundred. On one occasion it is stated that the load was of thirty-two bundles, on another of thirty-six. The origin is sometimes given as oak or fir. Laths go by other names as splints, scindulae, and asserculi. Laths were used for timber buildings plastered, and for ceilings. But as brick became cheaper, what used to be called paper buildings, and were very general, were a great deal superseded.

TIMBER AND BOARD.

THESE articles are designated by many names. Timber is bought by the ton and by the cubic foot, and is oak, elm, ash, or deal. Box-wood is sold by the hundredweight, lignum vitae by the pound. Both are purchased as Navy stores.

But the commonest purchases are of sawn timber. These are known as quarters, double quarters, plank board, the thickness of the latter being often designated as inch or half inch, night board, clap board, evelath, assers, feather edge, eveboard, clove board, fittway board, compass and knee timber, half-finger plank. There are also to be found poles and joists for scaffolds and roofs, and scaffold planks.

The origin of the timber is also given as Spruce or Danske.

The most valuable is known as wainscot, and is bought by the piece, the yard, and the foot, sometimes by the quarter.

As time goes on the use of deals and deal boards becomes increasingly common. Fir planks occur first at Cambridge in 1612, deals in the Navy accounts. Towards the latter part of the period deals are bought largely at Eton and Winchester.

A few entries of Underwood (U) by the acre are recorded.

BRICKS, TILES, AND SLATES.

BRICKS are by no means in common use. They are scarce and dear at Oxford for a long time, though used generally at Cambridge. They are bought by the thousand and by the load, the latter apparently 500. But at Oxford they are certainly bought in the earlier period by the dozen, and frequently at very high prices. They were, I believe, chiefly used for ovens and fireplaces, sometimes for paving. They are sometimes described as large when they are much dearer, or pavement when the same fact may be noted. Sometimes six-inch bricks, also dear, are registered, and even nine-inch. I have also found in Oxford what are called four-edged bricks at a high price. But ordinary builder's bricks do not appear to have been used, though there is abundant clay near Oxford, though perhaps not of the best quality.

Bricks are largely used at Cambridge, Eton, and Winchester. Sometimes the College designates the origin of the brick, as in Cambridge, Ely, and Stow, at Winchester, Otterburn, and Swanmore, at Eton, Slough, Warwill, Upton, Hedgerley, and Winkfield. The better qualities were used for facing the building. This is very noticeable at Eton in the three years 1688-90.

Tiles (T.) are of very various kinds. The commonest and cheapest are those so called, or plain tiles. Besides there are ridge, crest, corner, and gutter tiles, quite ten times as dear as common tiles. These crests, &c., are also called hip or hepe tiles, roof tiles, eves tiles, gully tiles, hewed tiles, hollow tiles, or hollow ware, or tegulæ impluvii. Common tiles are bought by the thousand and by the load; ridge tiles by the hundred, the dozen, and singly. Occasionally the account specifies that bricks and tiles are old or new.

Besides these there are many entries of paving bricks and paving tiles. In 1584 All Souls College paves the hall with tiles.

Slates are generally used at Oxford. They are as before the fissile oolite of Stonesfield and elsewhere. They are ordinarily bought by the load, which on one occasion we are informed was 400, probably 480, i.e. the long hundred, as we are told that the hundred of tiles is on another occasion. But slates are occasionally found at Cambridge. It appears that sometimes the slate was hewn so as to form ridge or eve slates.

The slates and tiles were fastened to laths nailed to the roof by pins. The plaster used for walls and ceilings was mixed with hair got chiefly from the butchers and tanners. The making of tile pins appears to have been a bye industry.

In 1646 there is an entry at Eton of a load of 'sammel.' brick to rub with. I do not know whether this is what is now called Bath-brick. Halliwell says that sammen-brick is an east country word for half-burnt brick.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF TEXTILE FABRICS.

LINEN.

THE most numerous items in this record are of table linen, and are extracted from the accounts of the various corporations which have supplied me with most of my evidence. They are chiefly cloths for the dining tables in the hall, or for the Warden's or Master's apartments, or home, and for napkins and towelling. The quality of the table linen varied with the academical rank, or, in the case of the schools, with the position of the inmates.

Other kinds of linen for personal wear and for sheeting, &c. are not absent, and even the coarser kinds for kitchen, dairy, and even farm purposes. The accounts of private individuals contain entries of linen for the underclothing of men and women, for surplices, and, as time goes on, for the use of persons of rank and wealth.

The names given to table and other linen are very numerous, some denoting the origin of the cloth, some the texture, if indeed the two can be always distinguished. The commonest name is canvas, as indeed it is one of the oldest, several kinds of canvas, generally indicating its purpose, being given. Thus I find Lancashire cloth, Holland, both for personal wear and the table, Hanborough, Diaper, Cotton, white and broad, not apparently from the same material with which we are familiar, Calico, Lawn, Damask, Lockram, a very common material, Housewife, Roan, Oxenbridge, Flaxen, Dornix, Scottish, Pickling, Shopper, tufted, Ipswich, Preston, Ost, Jackson's, Shepherd's, Dutch, Cambric, Dowlas, Vernick, Murles', Portpane, Buckram, Normandy, Hempen, Lubick, Fenbridge, Dimity, Brunswick, Indian Dimity, Bowsell, Frieze Holland, Hugat, Gent Holland or genting, sleasey and sletia diaper, Garlick Holland, French diaper, and huckaback.

The breadth of the material is sometimes given, and occasionally its object. In earlier times the ell is the common measure, in later ones the yard. Napkins are generally bought by the dozen, but sometimes by the piece. I have even found Napkinning.

Sackcloth is occasionally found, bought by the yard or ell, or in bulk by the bolt.

There are a few entries of ship's canvas from the dockyards.

CLOTHING.

THE following pages contain such entries of woollen and silk fabrics as have been found. By far the greatest number of the entries are derived from purchases at King's College, Cambridge, for the choristers, these entries being marked C. The Winchester entries are for the boys on the foundation and for the choristers. Those of Eton are for the boys, for the servants, for whose liveries 'azure' is regularly bought, and occasionally for 'gentlemen,' i.e. I believe, such residents, once very few, who are now called 'oppidans.' The purchases are by the pannus or piece, or by the yard. The piece at Eton is generally 33 yards or thereabouts.

Most of the entries are for men's clothing, and generally of inferior goods. But there are some purchased by men of rank and fortune for their own use. Some also are for women's dress, but it is to be remembered that men and women used the same stuffs for clothing.

My register will be found to contain the following materials:—Velvet, satin, sarsnet, damask, taffeta, frieze, tufted morkindoe, holmes fustian, carpet cloth, baize of all colours, milion or milan fustian, Cursey or Kersy, bustelin, say, frysado, Russet, broadcloth, grogram, silk and worsted, Devonshire cursey, Peniston purple, fustian of all colours, northern dozens, Kentish cloth, camlet, stamel, fugarillo, Indies frieze, stamel baize, minikin, gingilene and green peropus, fine flannel, Jean fustian, Murray shag, Spanish medley, Shag baize, Bristol peripetasma, green Peniston, crimson barracan, Spanish cloth, plush, Segovia cloth, Perpetuana, serge, broad tike ranny, mohair shalloon, serge de Chalons, Crispiniano, tabinet, tabby, ras de Cypre, Drap de Bery, Tammy, lutestring, Nectorella, Holland camlet, Serge de Roan, Bristol carpeting, Bombazene, pondezon, parragon, farindine, rash cloth, drugget, calimanco, Dutch cloth, Satanello, Padoway or Padua serge, Barras, grasett, Shagareen, Atlas Cotnege, and Mantua. There are also a few entries of gold and silver lace.

At the end of this register are some prices of cloth purchased for the servants of Christ Church, Canterbury, during fourteen consecutive years, i.e. 1322–1335 inclusive, and others by the Grocers' Company. As information on the price of cloth in early times is very scanty, I have printed these here. They are extracted from the ledger book of Christ Church priory, being entered there along with the correspondence of the monastery, and from the archives of the Company.

There are four qualities, that for the clerks and occasionally the seneschals, for armigeri, for mestiers, and for garciones. There are also chefs (i.e. hoods) of sindon, and fur dressings and linings. Occasionally the account gives the cost of each person's livery. The quantities given with the cost, will indicate roughly what the numbers of the establishment were.

PAPER.

PAPER is generally bought by the quire, occasionally by the ream. Some of the Eton purchases by the latter measure, may be for the printing presses which Savile set up, or they may be for the bursar's accounts which are written on paper, as well as the rough books from which the audit was prepared. The entries taken between 1670 and 1677 are from the papers of the Oxford press, collected by Hearne and preserved among his miscellaneous papers in the Rawlinson collection. This paper, small quarto, was used for correspondence as well as for printing, the London dealer constantly mentioning that the article he prices is what he is writing on.

ROPE.

THE following entries are chiefly of bell-ropes. A few are of ship's cordage, and sold by the hundredweight or ton. Occasionally rope is bought by the stone of 14 lbs. These are at King's College, Cambridge.

There are a few entries of lines and clock-ropes. The price of these articles is much higher.

TABLES OF THE PRICES OF LABOUR.

THE prices of labour given in the following pages give such entries, artisan, agricultural or unskilled, as have been discovered in each locality.

When two figures are given the first is the number of workmen, the second the number of days. When one figure only is found, it is of the number of days. Sawyers are always in pairs.

C. means carpenter. T. tiler. M. mason. S. sawyer.

Sometimes the price of piecework is given.

QUARTER SESSIONS ASSESSMENTS OF WAGES.

THE following are a series of assessments of wages made by the justices of the peace in the several counties, in pursuance of 5 Eliz. cap. 4. They are given as nearly as possible in chronological order. The first two, taken for convenience together, are unfortunately mutilated, as far as the daily pay of labourers without meat and drink is concerned. But it is quite certain that the difference between the two rates, if the analogy of Lancashire in 1595 be taken, when provisions were far dearer, and the addition to wages for those who found themselves, would not be more than fourpence a day, and that this sum or less can be confidently added, in order to make a third schedule to each of the two Chester assessments.

CHESTER. Easter, 35 Eliz. & 38 Eliz. Ap. 24, 1591; Ap. , 1594.
(Harleian MSS., Mus. Brit.)

The list of payments without meat and drink is lost in both schedules. The preambles, of the same kind with those generally given, are also mutilated.

All which wages and liveries, by us the said justices dated in form aforesaid, we having consideration to the prices of all manner of victual, and other necessities in these North parts, do think indifferent and meant to continue within the East Riding of the said County of York for the next year to come.

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN. 1593. July 30.

Imprinted at London, by the deputies of Christopher Barker, printer to the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty.

IV.

LANCASTER. (Bodley Arch. E.) Aug. 30¹, 1595.

The several rates and taxations for wages made and set forth by the Justices of Peace for the County of Lancaster.

Where in the Parliament holden at Westminster the xii day of January, in the fifth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lady the Queen's majesty, it was enacted by the Queen our Sovereign Lady, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and the Commons in that Parliament assembled, that the Justices of the Peace of every Shire, Riding and liberty, within the limits of their several commissions, or the more part of them, being resiant within the same, and the sheriff of the county, if he conveniently might, and every Mayor, Bailiff or other head officer within any city or town corporate, wherein is any justice of the peace within the limits of the said city or town, should by force of the said Act, yearly after Easter at times convenient, appointed by the same, assemble themselves together, and calling before them such discreet and grave persons of the said county, city or town, as they should think meet, and conferring together, respecting the plenty or scarcity of the time, and other circumstances necessarily to be considered, should by virtue of the said Act, within the limits and precincts of their several commissions, limit, rate, and appoint the wages as well of such and so many of the said artificers, handicraftsmen, husbandmen, or any other labourer, servant, or workman, whose wages in time past hath been by any law of (sic) Statute rated or appointed, as also the wages of all other labourers, artificers, workmen or apprentices of husbandry which have not been rated, as the said justices, Mayors or head officers within their several commissions or liberties, should think meet by their discretions to be rated, limited or appointed, and the same rates and taxations should certify unto the Queen's Highness Court of Chancery before a certain day limited in the said Act, whereupon it should be lawful for the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England, for the time being, upon declaration thereof to her Highness, her heirs and successors, or to the Lords and others of her Majesty's Privy council, to cause proclamations to be printed and sent down into every of the said shires and places, containing the several rates appointed by the said justices and other head officers, commanding thereby in her Highness name, all persons straitly to observe and keep the same, upon the danger of the punishment and forfeitures limited and appointed by the said Act.

¹ This date is that at which the printer inserted it. The assessment was probably made about Ap. 30. In 1593 Easter Day was April 29th.

And where also it is further enacted by the authority aforesaid, that all manner of person and persons, after such proclamation made, shall observe and keep the said rate for wages, upon pain of the forfeitures and penalties contained in the said Estatute, until by further order by proclamation, according to the purport of the said Estatute, it should be otherwise ordered and proclaimed: wherefore the Queen's Majesty having received into her said Court of Chancery, amongst divers other certificates, from sundry her Highness shires, cities and towns, one certificate from the county of Lancaster, containing the rates for wages hereafter following, made and appointed by the justices of the county of Lancaster according to the tenor of the said Act; and minding to have the same rates put in execution in all points, as by the powers of the same Act is prescribed, like as her Majesty hath and intended to do in all other her Highness' counties and shires and other places of liberty in this her Realm; therefore her Highness straitly chargeth and commandeth all manner person and persons within the County of Lancaster, to keep and observe in all points the said rates, taxations, orders and appointments for wages hereafter following, and set forth upon the pains and forfeitures appointed by the said Estatute, and upon pain of her Highness' displeasure.

And further her Highness' pleasure and express commandment is, that all Justices of the Peace, Sheriffs and other officers of the said county of Lancaster, shall see and cause the same rates duly and severely to be observed and kept in all points; and this proclamation to be read in every behalf, according to the tenor of the same Act. And her Majesty's further pleasure and commandment is, that if any question, scruple or doubt shall arise upon any of the taxations or rates for the said county of Lancaster, hereunder mentioned: that then the same shall be resolved and determined by her Highness' justices of peace that did make and ordain the said taxation and rates: and that all persons shall perform and keep the same resolutions, orders and determinations so by them to be made and determined touching the same.

The County of Lancaster.

Inprimis, no bailiff of husbandry, chief hind, or miller shall take above forty shillings by year and his livery, or viiis. for the same, at the election of the said servant.

It is agreed by us justices of the peace whose names are underwritten, by the consent of the inhabitants whose names are likewise herebefore written, that we do ratify and allow the estimate of number of acres aforesaid in each person's occupying after the rate of 1*d.* an acre for the defraying and discharging of the charges first mentioned in the beginning of this book, and when this collection is near defrayed and paid for the said acres within xxs., then one more collection after the like rate of 1*d.* an acre to be made, and so to continue for the use of her Majesty's service as aforesaid, and that the constable of the parish for the time being shall collect or cause to be collected the said sums from time to time and make an account thereof to the overseers of the parish for the time being, always when the money is expired within xxs. And if the constable do travel to the court or to make provision for carriage he shall be allowed xiid. for each day so bestowed. In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands the 27 day of March, 1600, and Anno 42 of our sovereign lady Elizabeth queen of England, &c.

Item Thomas Allen then paid to Wyll. Heth	2	6
Item Harry Kyng paid to him	2	6
These three last sums Willm. Heth paid to John Land to discharge one load of coals laid upon them and John Land and brother.

19 Maii 1600.

It is agreed by us justices that all the persons before written that have in their occupying but x acres and under shall pay the said rates for the said charges but one time every year, and that they that have above x acres and under xxx acres in their occupying shall pay yearly the said rates ij times yearly, if the charge do rise to so much.

And if the charges aforesaid do rise to more in any year, then they that have above 30 acres in their occupying shall pay and bear all the rest of the charges for that year, and so yearly to follow the like rate.

Provided always that our intent and meaning is that those who be owners and men of ability and have little occupying shall be charged according to their ability by the justices discretion towards the relief of the poor notwithstanding the said rates aforesaid.

REGULATIONS FOR QUARANTINE DURING THE PLAGUE,
OXFORD. SEPTEMBER, 1603.

(Merton College Register.)

DECRETA TEMPORE PESTIS.

206. Anno Dñi 1603 Regni Regis Jacobi 10 fundati Collegii Maldoniæ 339° Oxonia 330° Henrici Savile custodis 19°.

Septembris 2º consensus est per dominum custodem, et socios, in alta Aula, ut aliquot ex scholaribus nostris pauperioribus, quorum præsentia commode carere poteramus, ob metum pestis ingravescentis in oppido, e collegio ad tempus saltem amendantur.

Septembris 6º dominus custos, omnesque socii domus tunc existentes, in altam Aulam convenerunt, ubi, quia pestis jam in oppido disseminata latius, plus virium indies grassando per populum comparaverat, ita ut Academicis quoque magnum facessere periculum videretur, unanimi consensus statuta sunt ista quæ sequuntur.

Primo, ut singuli magistri, bacchalaurei, servi collegii portionistæ alique scholares ad unum omnes, rus alicubi, aut in patriam suam, se reciperent, tribus exceptis officiariis, vice custodi, decano, præsentis bursario, et seniori socio, altero item de clericis, e coquis, janitore et quatuor demum e numero scholarium, qui magistris his commorantibus subseruirent, una cum famulo custodis, qui vices obsonatoris gereret aliasque res nobis necessarias procuraret.

Secundo, dispensatum est cum magistris regentibus, pro publicis suis lectionibus, replicationibus, et Augustinensibus, usque ad festum omnium Sanctorum, sive interea terminus in Academia habeatur sive minus. Quo festo, si nedom forsán terminus in Universitati inchoaret, continuata est hæc dispensatio, usque ad inceptionem ejusdem, vel ad potius usque ad festum Purificationis proxime sequentis. Quo tempore ad summum si ob pestem adhuc sævientem, nondum terminus publice iniretur, decreto cautum est, ut tam magistri regentes quam reliqui omnes socii domum reversi, ad manerium nostrum de Cuxham, veluti in commune aliquod Musæum, solitis ex ingeniorum suorum exercitationibus studiisque, operam navandi causam, commearent.

Tertio, tutius etiam fore videbatur, ut pistore, brasiatore laniisque ad tempus valedictis, cum passim oppidum incolerent, Gulielmus Napper Firmarius noster de Holywell rogaretur, quo singula hæc alimentaria, adjumenta, domestica cura et labore suo parta et confecta, quotidie necessitati nostræ communi, assidueque subministraret. Quibus ille optatis nostris paulo post rogatus, pacatissimo animo obsecundavit.

Quarto, quo mox abfuturis proque tempore rus religandis sociis æque atque cæteris istic commoraturis, aliquot etiam ad victum suum cultumve necessaria, suppeditarentur communi lege sanciebatur ut quilibet socius, quicunque præsentibus decretis dum facta sunt, intererat pro singulis septimanis quibus ob pestem a Collegio se disjungi contingeret, drachmas undecim e pecunia publica perciperet, at ne sic sine conditione quidem, tot enim drachmas revera habiturus erat, si mercatu proxime præcedente festum Sancti Michaelis mox secuturi, octo modii tritici, tredecim solidis venderentur, sin minoris, decem tantum. Item edictum est, ut equiso (qui utpote incola oppidi jussus est abesse a Collegio) viginti denarios, et duo coqui, quibus, et similem causam in domum intrare non licuit, conjunctim duos solidos, per singulas hebdomadas, et tertius, qui in culina eorum munera obiret, famulusque custodis, vices gerens obsonatoris, communas in alta aula inter servientes, postremo, quatuor scholares, qui magistris ministrarent de mensa quatuor portionistarum, duobus eis insuper additis denariis pro quolibet prandio, per singulos dies septimanæ, sumptu publico obtinerent.

Quinto, ne lotrices frequenti accessu et secessu suo periculum aliquod inclusis creare possent, ordinatum est, ut Blackamus solus ingrederetur, omnes pannos lineos importandi exportandique causa, sub ea lege, si ex oppido cum tota sua familia in domum aliquam rusticam, nec istinc adeo remotam, quamprimum se transferre vellet. Quod ille fecit libenter.

Sex et ultimo, consensus est ut neque præfatæ allocationes, nec cætera omnia, fieri, aut in usu esse inciperent, ante nonum diem Septembris proxime sequentis, qui erat dies Veneris, initiumque septimanæ, ut iste primus, predicti decretis, ortus sui animam viresque infunderet.

Decembris 4^{to} jam defervescente (Deo gratias) in oppido, sed non prorsus extincta peste, publicus in Academia terminus incepit qua die, tam communi, quam privatæ dissolutioni finis ultimus imponitur. Nam et alii academici passim e patriis suis ad pristina domicilia, et nostri collegii socii, ad hoc suum sibi bene notum musæum, ut jam redierant aut in dies magis magisque revertebantur, et antedictas sibi allocatas pecunias pro absentia ex ærario consequebantur.

ACTS OF THE CITY COUNCIL, LONDON.

(Rawlinson, B. 385. p. 90.)

By act of Common Counsell of the ^{iiij}th of January, 1627 (i.e. 1628).

1. The moneys disbursed out of the chamber for charges are first to be paid with interest after the rate of ^{viii}^{li} per cent. for the time the said should be forborn.

2. £60,000 agreed to be levied of the Companies, and so much more of the other £60,000 not determined how to be levied in hope of money to be raised ere it should be paid as before the time of payment should not be raised by sale of lands and levied after of the Companies or otherwise after should be appointed should be next satisfied with allowance of 6 per cent. for forbearance.

But after that by Act of 29th of May 1628.

£20,000 of that later payment and £5000 for buying in the term was to be furnished as the court of Aldermen and 20 committees should agree and to be secured with interest at 8^{li} per cent.

And by act of the 21 of June the £20,000 remaining unpaid and the £45,000 paid with allowance after 8 per cent. shall be first paid out of the moneys to be raised by sale any former act notwithstanding.

3. By the act of the ^{iiij}^{to} Januarii.

Satisfaction and payment to be made of the principal debt of the £60,000 which the city did furnish to his Majesty at his coming to the throne.

4. The principal debt of the moneys which the city did furnish to his Majesty's royal father upon his going into Scotland.

5. Satisfaction to be made of the interest of £60,000 lastly mentioned after the rate of ^{viii}^{li} per cent. from time of the loan to the 20th of Dec. last as his Majesty had made allowance.

And from the 20th of Dec. to the payment thereof after 5 per cent. for the principal, not reckoning interest upon interest.

6. Lastly, payment and satisfaction of interest for the principal debt furnished to his Majesty's father due the 20 of Dec. as his Majesty had allowed, and from 20 of Dec. until payment at 5^{li} per cent. not reckoning interest upon interest.

If after all these payments made, there shall any surplusage remain either of lands or money arising thereof, the court, though they have full power and liberty to dispose thereof, do not purpose to make further advantage.

And if the lands assured by his Majesty shall not serve to make satisfaction and payment of all the several sums before mentioned, the Court will provide and take order for payment and satisfaction in the manner and order before prescribed, and after the rates for forbearance before mentioned, of such of the said sums and interest for the same as will not be satisfied with the moneys to be raised upon the sale of the lands to be assured as aforesaid.

Note. The loans made by the city amounted with interest to £394,077 13s., of which £57,350 2s. were paid. The land held against it, in hand and sold, was valued at £312,499 13s.

[?] How Bristol comes to be rated here of all the port towns and that at so high proportion.

I suppose the counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland might not be rated in the year 1640, or if it were rated, not laid upon them in respect of the Scots' army entering England and lying there at the time.

Sanderson, in his History of King Charles I, p. 198, says it came to 23,600, yet presently after says it amounted to 20,000 per mensem, which is short of the other. Quære what was raised upon Wales? The total sum, according to this paper, London excepted, which was not rated the first four years, amounts in the year 1636 189,200, 1637 186,100, 1638 186,100, 1639 65,500, 1640 210,400.

RENTAL OF LORD KINGSTON'S ESTATE IN NORTH
NOTTS. Nov. 1689.

From Samuel Pepys' papers (Rawl. A. 170, No. 101. Bodleian Library).

The following rental is, as may be inferred from internal and collateral evidence, of part of the Earl of Kingston's estate in North Notts. How it came into the hands of Pepys, and was preserved among the papers which Rawlinson procured and gave to the Bodleian Library, I do not know. William, fourth Earl of Kingston, died in 1690, and was succeeded by his brother Evelyn, made Marquis of Dorchester in 1706, and Duke of Kingston in 1715.

The rental of Mr. John Wildbore's collection.
